SITUATION NOTE · BANKR. S.D. TEX. CASE NO. 26-90739 (ARP) · 22 OCT 2026

Hughes Satellite Systems: the fight is over who owns the litigation, not the satellites

A controlled debtor, a concentrated creditor body and a parent that is both lender and target. The 1 December hearing decides who writes the plan, and that decides who prosecutes the estate's claims against EchoStar.

01 Executive summary

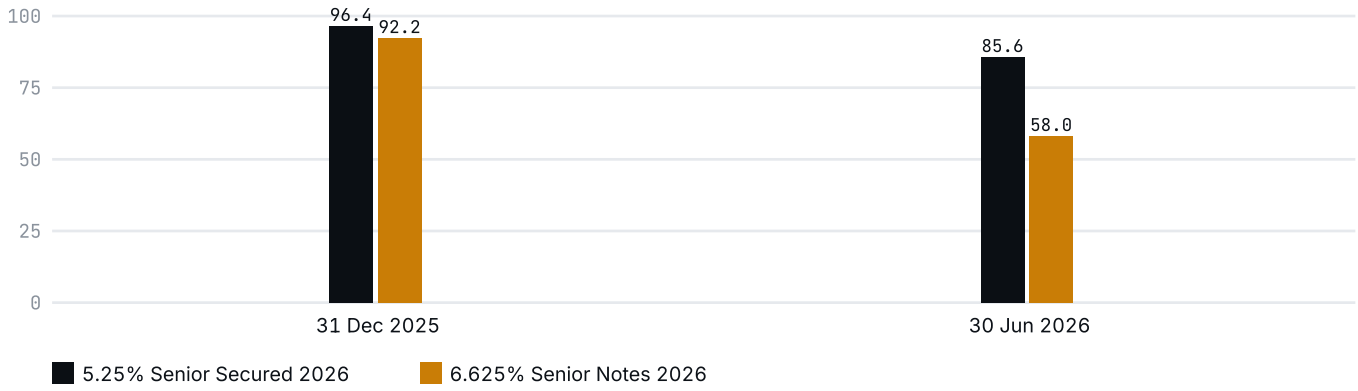

OUR VIEW

The secured notes are the better-protected claim, and the swing factor for them is subordination, not enterprise value. If the $172.7m of EchoStar-held secured claims (the $122.7m of notes it bought in 2025 plus the $50m J3 secured advance) is subordinated, third-party secured holders share the collateral with nobody. Under our base case that moves their recovery from about 64 to 84 cents. The unsecured notes, at a fair value of 58.0 on 30 Jun 2026, are a claim on a litigation trust that does not yet exist.

SECURED NOTES FV	UNSECURED FV	GROUP HOLDING	SUBSCRIBERS	J3 LEASE
85.6	58.0	>61.6% / >84.4%	641k	$15.9m/mo
$536.8m / $627.3m, 30 Jun 26[5]	$435.0m / $750m, 30 Jun 26[6]	secured / unsecured[2]	−21.7% YoY[9]	paid to non-debtor parent[7]

- What happened. Hughes did not pay $1.5bn of notes that matured on 1 Aug 2026, a Saturday, and filed for Chapter 11 the next day[15][1]. No DIP proposal had been received as of the 19 Aug deposition[24], and the case is funded with cash collateral[32]. EchoStar is the parent and the J3 satellite lessor, and it also holds $122.7m of the secured notes[4][5].
- The fight. A Noteholder Group holding more than 61.6% of the secured notes and more than 84.37% of the unsecured notes has moved to terminate exclusivity and file its own debt-for-equity plan. That plan would put the estate's claims against EchoStar into a litigation trust[2][19]. On 21 Oct the court refused, on an interim basis, to strike that motion and set a hearing for 1 Dec 2026 at 9:00 AM[27].
- Why it matters. The Group alleges that EchoStar took $1.029bn of dividends and $196m of tax reimbursements in 2024, and that the J3 lease is above market[13]. These are allegations, not findings. Whoever controls the plan controls whether they are prosecuted, settled or released.
- Liquidity is the clock. The Group alleges there is no unencumbered cash, about $48m of J3 payments deferred and about $43m of estate professional fees deferred[26][25]. Hughes had $119m of cash and current marketable securities at FY2025[28].

02 Timeline

- 2025 EchoStar buys about $123m of the 5.25% Secured Notes in open-market trades and holds them through an affiliate[4].
- Feb 2026 HSSC and EchoStar sign two intercompany financings, $50m secured and $1m unsecured at 13.75%, covering J3 lease payments that were owed but not paid on time[8].
- 21 Jul 2026 The ad hoc group's counsel sends a letter raising the J3 lease, the dividends, the tax reimbursements and the SpaceX subscriber referrals[13].
- 24-28 Jul 2026 About 400 employees are told their jobs will end[12].
- 1-3 Aug 2026 Both note series mature on 1 Aug, a Saturday, so payment falls due on the next business day. Hughes and its affiliated debtors file for Chapter 11 on 2 Aug[15][1].
- 19 Aug 2026 The Group deposes the CRO. It says no formal DIP proposals had been received by then[24].
- 10 Sep 2026 Dkt 320: the Noteholder Group's emergency motion to terminate exclusivity, with a plan term sheet attached[16].
- 1 Oct 2026 DISH DBS, a sister subsidiary, emerges under its prepackaged plan, a reminder of what a parent-led process looks like[30].
- 14 Oct 2026 Dkt 534: the Group alleges there is no unencumbered cash and points to deferred lease payments and professional fees[26].
- 21 Oct 2026 Dkt 575: the Debtors' motion to strike is denied on an interim basis[27].
- 1 Dec 2026, 9:00 AM Further hearing (Judge Alfredo R. Pérez)[27].

OPERATING BACKDROP

FY2025 revenue was about $1.4bn[10], against a net loss of about $1.274bn, which was driven largely by consumer broadband revenue declines and a large non-cash charge[11]. The consumer business is losing subscribers to low-earth-orbit competitors. That makes value timing-sensitive, and it is why the Group's plan includes a sale process to close within a year of emergence[22].

Dkt 4 ¶¶ (first-day declaration)[9].

03 Capital structure and recovery scenarios

CLAIM	FACE ($M)	DETAIL	RANKING	SRC

Funded debt (excluding admin)	1,551.0	The Group's plan counts about $800m of All Asset Secured Claims[16]

EXHIBIT 2 · WHO HOLDS THE SECURED NOTES ($750M)

Noteholder Group (>61.6%) | EchoStar affiliates | Other holders (residual)

The Group's holding uses the floor of its disclosed share: 61.6% × $750m = $462.0m[2]. EchoStar's $122.7m comes from the 10-Q carrying-amount bridge ($750m – $627.3m)[5]. The residual is our calculation.

EXHIBIT 3 · MODELLED RECOVERY VS REPORTED FAIR VALUE (CENTS)

These are TRIAGE calculations from assumptions A1–A5 and are not estimates of value. Cents are per $ of claim. Third-party secured holders are $627.3m. The unsecured pool is $774.8m plus any secured deficiency. "Incl. trust" adds each secured holder's share of trust proceeds on its deficiency claim. The sum is capped at 100.

Reading the grid. In this model, if the business is worth about $600m and EchoStar's claims are subordinated, third-party secured holders recover about 84 cents, close to their reported 85.6. On a pari passu basis the same value gives roughly 64 cents. That is the gap the Group is fighting over. For the unsecured notes to be worth their reported 58.0, the trust would need to deliver about $449m net, with secured holders paid in full first. That is well above our base case. Their price therefore embeds a large litigation recovery, a settlement premium from EchoStar, or both.

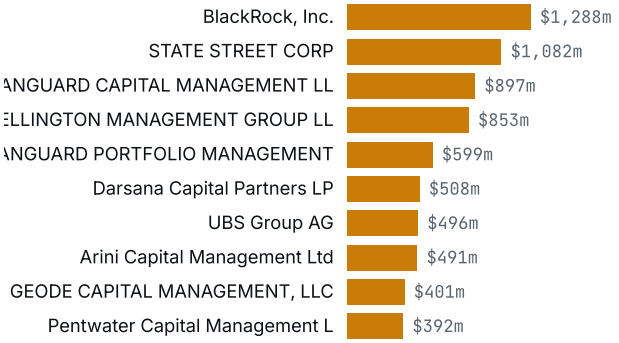

04 Holder map

Two different sets of holders matter here. The Noteholder Group holds the Hughes notes. It discloses aggregate percentages[2]. Its member-level holdings are in a verified statement (Dkt 93), and we could not retrieve that document from a public mirror for this note. We therefore name no members. The 13F holders of EchoStar, the defendant in any estate litigation, are shown below from Q2 2026 13F filings. A fund can appear on both sides. We do not infer any overlap.

06 Plan-fight dynamics

DEBTORS / ECHOSTAR

- Exclusivity keeps plan design, and with it the treatment of claims against the parent, with a board the parent controls. The Group says the controlling shareholder holds about 90.4% of EchoStar's votes[31].
- EchoStar is landlord (J3, $15.9m a month)[7], secured lender ($50m at 13.75%)[8] and holds $122.7m of the secured notes[5].
- Running on cash collateral[32] means there is no DIP lender to impose milestones[24].

NOTEHOLDER GROUP

- Its plan is a standalone debt-for-equity deal. Reorganized equity and new secured debt go to unaffiliated secured holders, and a sale process closes within a year[17][22].
- Claims against EchoStar go into a litigation trust. The unsecured notes, about $774.8m, recover from it[19]. Its tiers accrue 13.75%, the same rate EchoStar charges Hughes[20].
- The J3 lease would be rejected unless EchoStar XXIV agrees to modify it[21]. A member would provide a bridge DIP[29].

WHAT THE 1 DECEMBER COURT HAS TO WEIGH

To end exclusivity "for cause" under §1121(d), the court will look at whether a controlled debtor can credibly deal at arm's length with its controlling parent. It will also weigh the creditor concentration: the Group holds 73.71% of the secured notes excluding EchoStar[3] and more than 84.37% of the unsecured notes[2]. The question is whether the Debtors have shown reasonable prospects of filing a confirmable plan. A plain denial of the motion to strike keeps the termination motion alive, but it does not grant it[27]. Possible outcomes include:

- Termination granted. The Group files its plan within 20 days. Disclosure-statement approval follows within about 40 days, then confirmation about 30 days later[22]. The fight then shifts to subordination and the J3 lease.
- Exclusivity shortened or conditioned. The most common middle path. It gives the Debtors a deadline and creates settlement pressure on EchoStar.
- Motion denied. The Debtors keep control. Watch for a parent-sponsored plan that includes releases, and for an examiner or standing motion.

07 Catalysts

WHEN	CATALYST	WHY IT MOVES RECOVERIES
1 Dec 2026	Exclusivity hearing	Decides who writes the plan, and so whether the claims against EchoStar are prosecuted or released[27]
Ongoing	Cash-collateral budgets and renewals	The Group alleges the estate has no unencumbered cash. The size of deferred liabilities sets the liquidity runway[25][26]
Ongoing	J3 lease: assume, reject or renegotiate	At $15.9m a month, about $191m a year, it is the largest related-party cash flow[7]
Next 10-Qs	Subscriber count and EchoStar's fair-value marks	641k subscribers, down 21.7% YoY[9]. Marks went from 96.4 to 85.6 (secured) and from 92.2 to 58.0 (unsecured) between Dec-25 and Jun-26[5][6]

08 Risks to the view

- Valuation. Low-earth-orbit competition could push the operating value below our $350m low case. Secured recovery would then fall with collateral value, whichever way subordination goes.
- Subordination is a litigated outcome, not a given. Equitable subordination requires inequitable conduct. EchoStar may defend its $122.7m of notes as open-market purchases[4].
- Allegations may fail. The dividend, tax and lease claims are the Group's characterisations[13][14]. A low trust recovery means unsecured value stays near our low case.
- Settlement. A parent settlement could release the claims for a fixed payment. This compresses outcomes for both classes.
- Data limits. Fair values are the issuer's Level 2 estimates, not traded prices. The Dkt 93 member list was not retrieved. Trade claims are not quantified.

A Verification appendix

Each footnote number maps to one row. "Verified" means the quoted token was found in the text of the primary document fetched on 22 Oct 2026. "Allegation" means the filing says this; it is not a finding. Rows marked as proposals are terms in the Noteholder Group's term sheet (Dkt 320), not a filed plan. These rows are also written to the TRIAGE verification ledger as HN01–HN32.
